

© F S

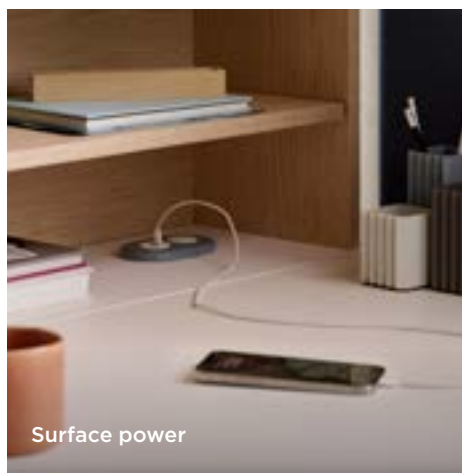

Kaleid

Where people collide, culture grows

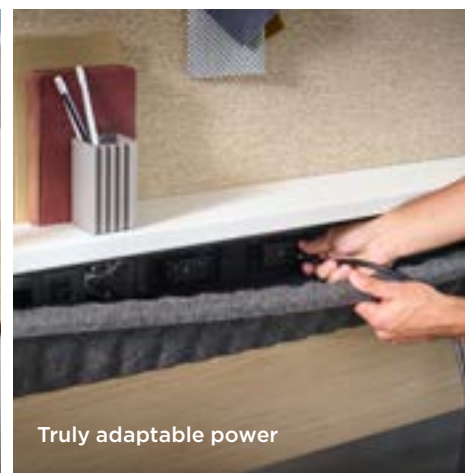

Kaleid is more than a workstation. It is a system for building adaptable, future-ready environments, fostering little neighborhoods of connection across the workplace that encourage people to come together.

Surface power

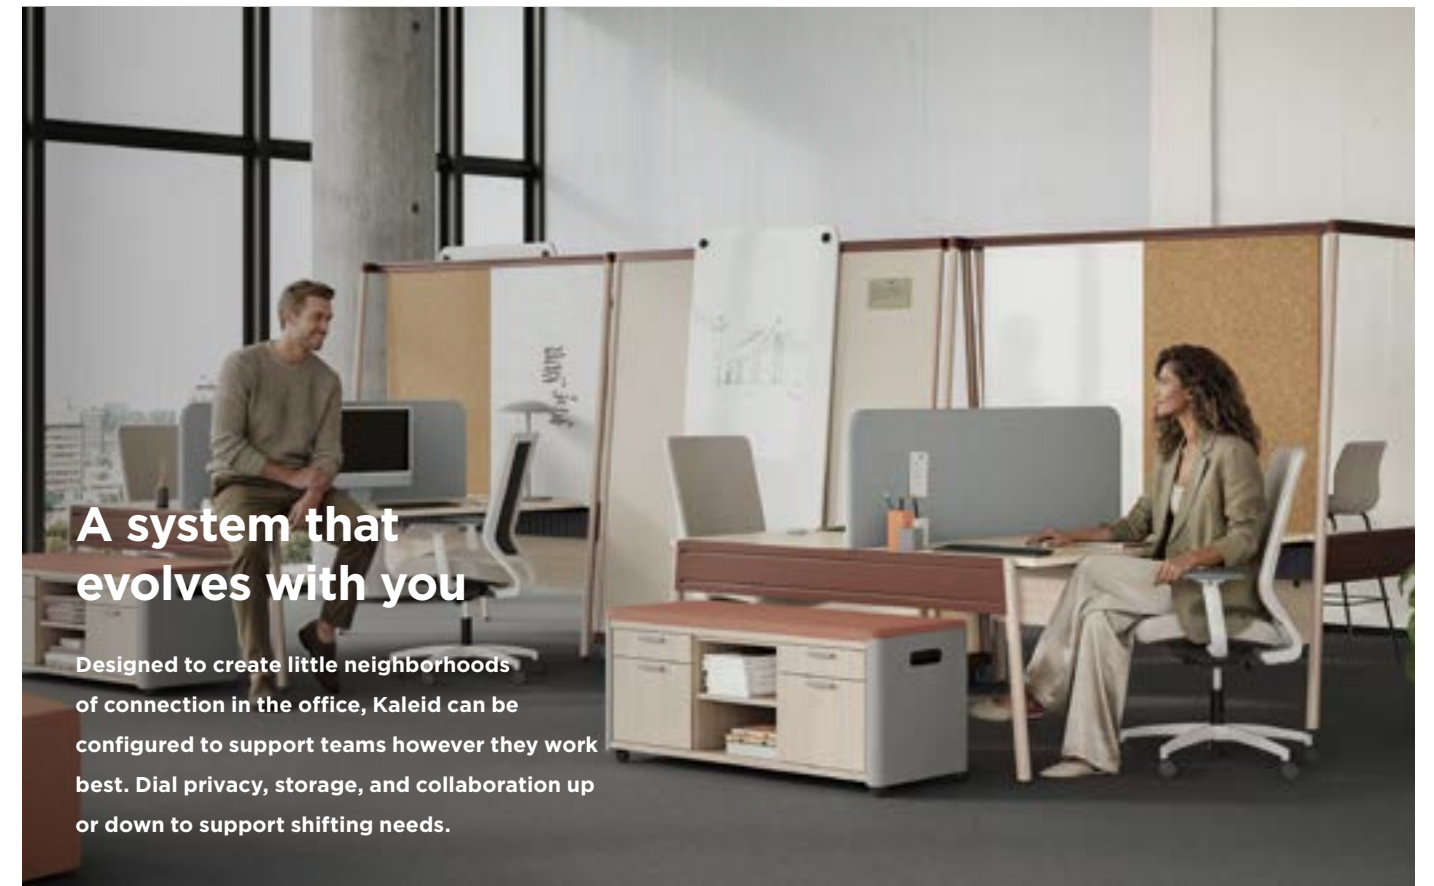

Wire management

Truly adaptable power

A system that evolves with you

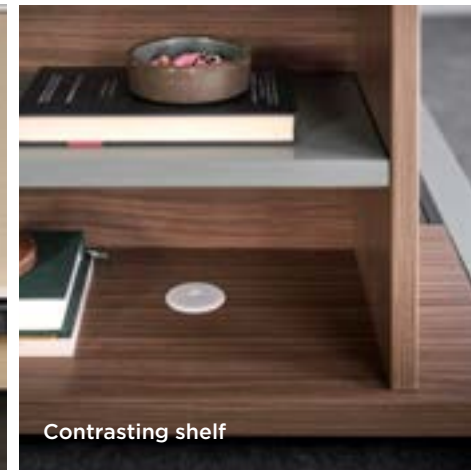

Designed to create little neighborhoods of connection in the office, Kaleid can be configured to support teams however they work best. Dial privacy, storage, and collaboration up or down to support shifting needs.

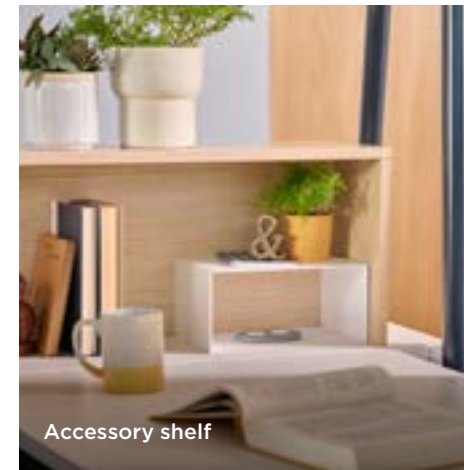

Layered materiality

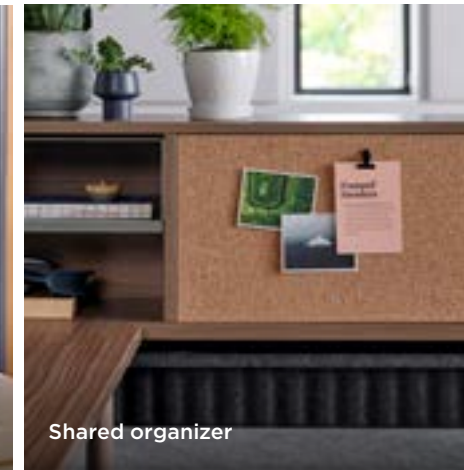

Modesty panels

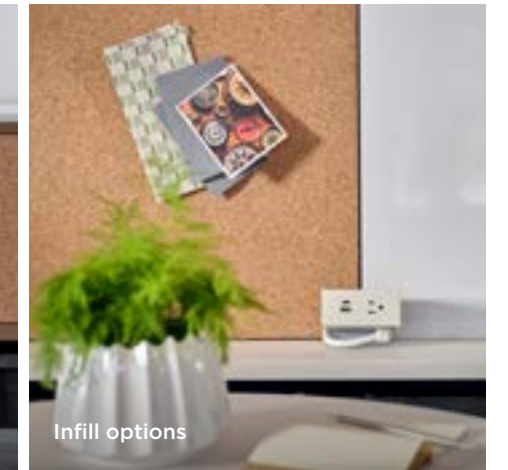

Contrasting shelf

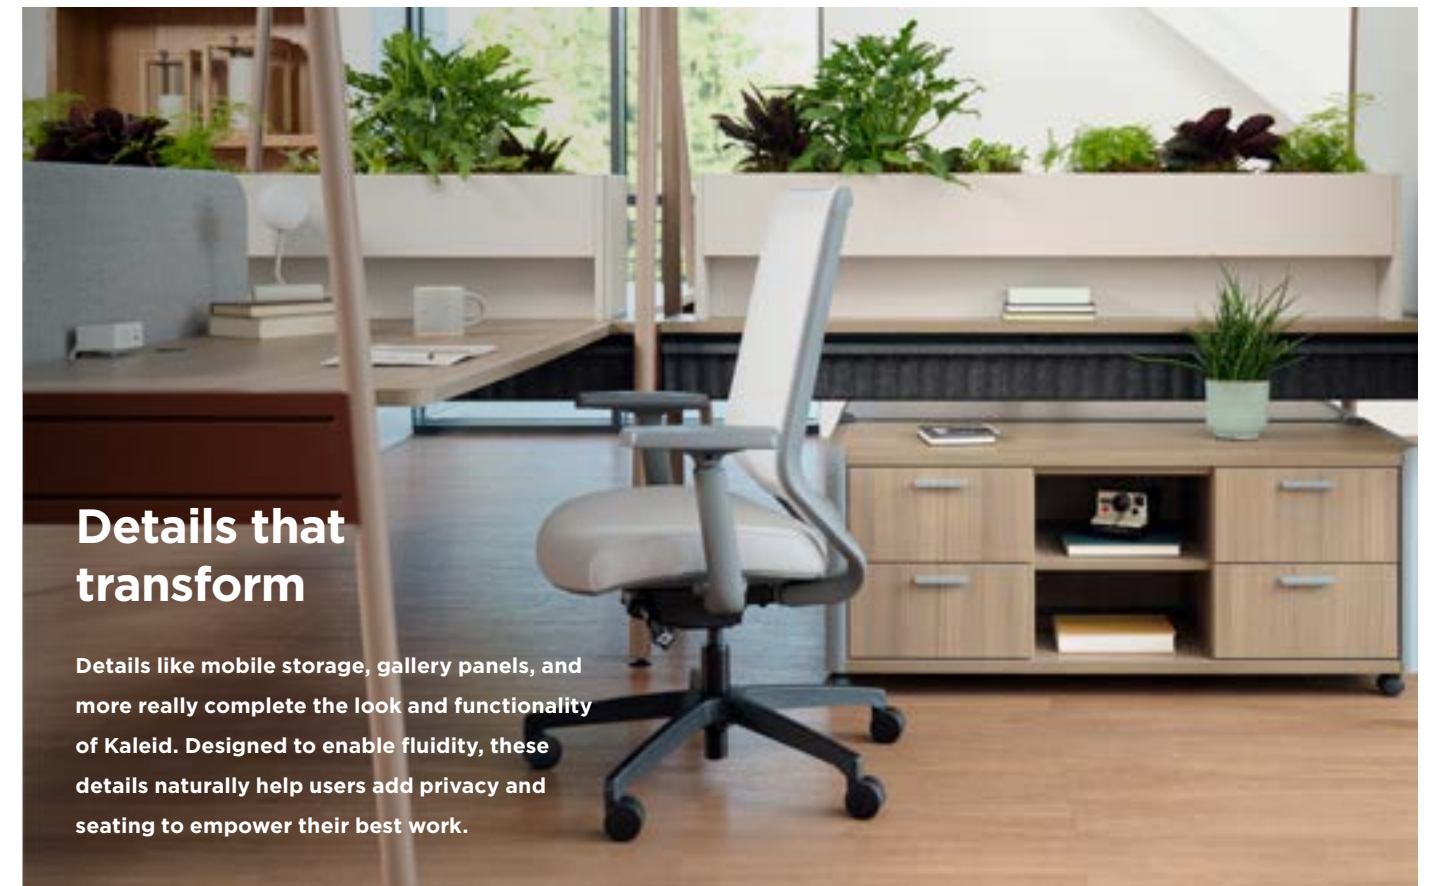

Accessory shelf

Shared organizer

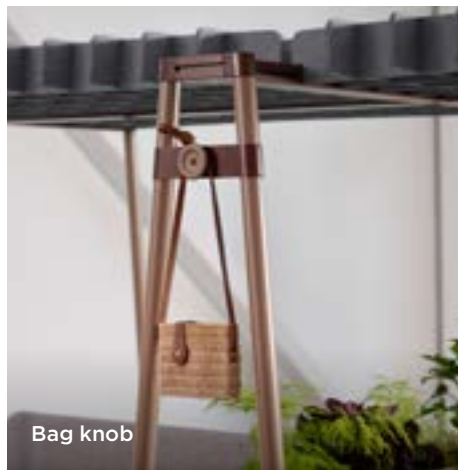

Infill options

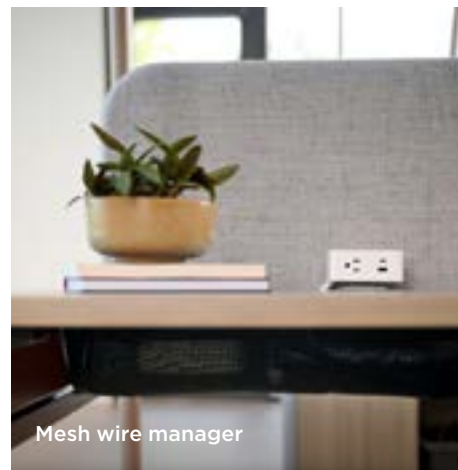

Details that transform

Details like mobile storage, gallery panels, and more really complete the look and functionality of Kaleid. Designed to enable fluidity, these details naturally help users add privacy and seating to empower their best work.

Bag knob

Mesh wire manager

Media panel + wire management

Studio Webb

Studio Webb is an award-winning design studio based in London, working alongside leading organizations to tackle shifting social and environmental challenges. For more than 35 years, they've shaped change across diverse sectors, maintaining strong ties to industry and the world of work. With a process rooted in collaboration and research, Studio Webb draws on meaningful insights and decades of experience to provide relationship-oriented strategy & design to a global client base, delivering enduring impact.

