

Eleven Wood

Eleven Wood embodies "Architecture Uninterrupted" with elegant simplicity and warmth from crafted wood. The solid ash wood legs extend to the Eleven collection, offering a mix of materials, shapes, and heights to fit settings where people gather to collaborate or focus. Comfortable utility paired with enduring design, Eleven tables create destinations for work, learning, and social interaction.

Learning is a constant no matter where you are in life. Having a great space where it's obvious that concentration is the priority helps set expectations of the appropriate interactions that take place in this area. Eleven library tables achieve this with a welcoming approach.

Furniture is architecture

The premise of Eleven Wood derives from the fundamental concept that furniture is architecture on a different scale. This thinking led Daniel Korb to design Eleven to be functional for human interactions with the warmth of wood and to create interior architectural elements that pique our visual interests.

Tables are communal in nature. They are at the heart of great conversations and building relationships. They are productive and social and serve as the foundation to discover more about each other than the project their striving to complete.

Xchange

Xchange was created by Daniel Korb, a Swiss architect and furniture designer, and Anthony Kotarac, a Sydney based architect and furniture designer who both share a passion for high quality and well designed furniture.

Korb and Kotarac believe that furniture is architecture on a different scale. This thinking has shaped Xchange's approach to furniture design resulting in solutions that seamlessly fuse utility and beauty.
